Duty Managers provide practical Front of House support in the running of Two Temple Place's next exhibition. They play a crucial role, working closely with the Culture & Community Team, to supervise a diverse group of over 180 Gallery Steward Volunteers and manage the exhibition spaces when open to the public. Duty Managers help us to ensure that Two Temple Place is welcoming, open, and accessible for all, and that Front of House operations run efficiently, professionally, and safely.

Background

Two Temple Place is a magnificent neo-Tudor gem in central London, built in 1895 for William Waldorf Astor. We are owned by registered charity The Bulldog Trust, and in 2011 opened our first annual free exhibition. Since then, we have welcomed 460,000 visitors. As part of our charitable activities, we run a programme of cultural and community events and projects designed to open our doors more often, to more people. To generate the funds for this, we make our beautiful and utterly unique building available for commercial hire.

We are now preparing for our next annual exhibition The Weight of Being which will be open from Saturday 24 January – Sunday 19 April 2026. The exhibition will explore the profound ways in which external pressures shape artistic expression, mental health, and resilience, highlighting the power of art as a means of expression, resistance, and survival. Including the work of a diverse range of twentieth century and contemporary artists and their varying perspectives, The Weight of Being will showcase how artists have captured the psychological and emotional impact of societal pressures, resilience in the face of adversity, and existential uncertainty.
